👤 Personal Statement

I am a technology enthusiast with a passion for solution building and problem-solving. The customer service skills I have gained through customer facing roles, make me effective at listening for and providing solutions that deliver what is needed. I hold a Bachelor of Computer and Information Sciences (majoring in Software Development, minoring in Networking & Cybersecurity and Creative Technologies) from Te Wānanga Aronui o Tāmaki Makau Rau - Auckland University of Technology (AUT).

Having been drawn to technology from a young age, I started coding and creating basic HTML sites from age 11. My innate curiosity sharpened through formal study and hands-on project work, including leading a team of four to deliver a full-stack web application for AUT Events + Venues. I pick up new concepts quickly, thrive under pressure, and am just as comfortable coordinating a team as I am deep in a technical problem.

I'm now looking to begin my professional career in a role where I can contribute to real-world technology solutions, continue developing my technical skills, and learn from experienced teams. I'm particularly interested in opportunities that combine problem solving, collaboration, and emerging technologies such as AI, and/or where I can add value while continuing to grow as a developer
